COMMUNIST DOCTRINE DISPROVED

VICTORY IN BRAZIL

Stalemate in British Guiana—Coming crisis in Chile—Triumph in Washington

By Nathaniel Rangel

Just about a year ago in this same place I surprised some of you when I said that communism was growing in Brazil with the possibility of its becoming a danger even to your own security. Today you know how right I was when I made that statement. For almost two years, using the exploitation of our social problem as their main weapon, communism made trouble in every area of our country. Two big "R's" in capital letters could be seen everywhere in the big cities of Brazil. This was the revolutionary sentiment, Reform or Revolution.

Now, certainly, we have to confess that our government knew it but it did not see communism as a danger for our security. One can say that the government was associated with the Communists supporting their program. A few weeks ago the authorities arrested 9 Chinese in Rio. These men had a book with the names of several people from the former government who were receiving money from Communist China to make the revolution in Brazil. Supported by the government also, every labor movement was like a Communist cell.

Tonight this banquet could be the celebration of a big victory in Brazil. All the free world can be exalted with what happened in Brazil. In particular, you of the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade can rejoice because for ten months you have supported a program in that country by putting in the hands of the university students 12,000 books "You Can Trust the Communists (to be Communists)". This helped a lot to realize how false is the Communist hope. I wish I had time to read to you some of the hundreds of letters that I have received from the students asking for books or just telling how helpful the book has been to them.

With sorrow in my heart, I see people trying to spoil victory in Brazil by saying that the revolution was done by the army to install a dictatorship there. This is not true. The revolution in Brazil was started by 100,000 religious women. They went into the streets praying and singing religious songs. I remember one day Goulart's brother-in-law, Brizola, has scheduled a rally in Belo Horizonte. The meeting should have started at 8:00 p.m. but, when Brizola got there with his people in the public auditorium, they had no place to sit. One hour before the meeting started, those religious women had taken all the seats and in a loud voice singing and praying their rosary they refused to leave the place. The moments just like that made Goulart realize that he did not have the people's support to make a social revolution in Brazil. Then he had to leave the country, and the shedding of blood was not necessary.

I wish you could have seen how thousands of people today are donating gold, such as rings and other jewelry, just to help the economical recuperation of Brazil. So far the people have donated over 300 pounds of solid gold, and this campaign is going all over Brazil as a demonstration of how the people are supporting the new government.

We have a president elected by the Congress and our Congress operates with all its constitutional guarantees.

Before I close let me say that the reconstruction program has just started in Brazil. Your work is not finished there. Communism remains there, and the real need right now is your financial support to supply our 50,000 university students with literature telling them of the nature of the Communist conspiracy, and this must be done RIGHT NOW because as Brazil goes, America goes.

HAIL TO THE RELIGIOUS WOMEN OF BRAZIL

By Dr. Fred Schwarz

I wouldn't be surprised if at any time now the Communists try to adopt the poet, Rudyard Kipling. It was Rudyard Kipling who wrote, "The female of the species is more deadly than the male" and from the Communists' point of view that is true. Our great hope of freedom is to arouse the women to the danger of communism. The picture that Nathaniel Rangel gave of the role of the women of Brazil is fascinating. I wonder what the pro-communist and anti-American Senator and ex-governor, the associate of the Communists, Brizola thought, when he went to that meeting in Belo Horizonte and found that he had a great audience, that the hall was filled to capacity, but that the audience consisted of Brazilian women who were using their rosaries and praying aloud. That is the best way I have ever heard of to defeat a Communist rally. The women of Brazil have set an example to the rest of the world. From their devotion to God, family and Democracy, the men derived inspiration and courage.

The Role of the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade

The events that have transpired in Brazil are encouraging, and we are proud that we had a part to play in those events but the battle must go on. The book "You Can Trust the Communists (to be Communists)" has been distributed in a variety of ways. Nathaniel Rangel has been handling the distribution to the university students. It has been distributed through the bookstores and it was serialized in some of the Brazilian newspapers. At present we have exhausted the printed supplies and the reason that Nathaniel is here is to ask us to get them another 30,000 copies. I would like to do it, but we need $15,000 for this project. To have to hesitate over $15,000 when the destiny of South America is at stake seems almost criminal, but we cannot do it without the money. I am confident that many of you will contribute to this need.

Three Victories

As we survey the world we can see three places where we have had something in the nature of a victory over communism. Those three places are Kerala-India, British Guiana, and Brazil, and in each case the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade has been deeply involved.

Kerala-India

In Kerala, India, the people were deceived. They were seduced by the Communist promises. They elected a Communist government. In the year 1957 we were able, because of the support of some friends in this country, to provide a dedicated Indian, George Thomas, Ph.D., trained in this country, with the where-withal to start a daily newspaper and to inform the people of the nature of Communism and what needed to be done to defeat it. We made a contribution to the overthrow of communism in that land.

British Guiana

There is a critical situation in British Guiana today, but three years ago it looked as though the Communists were certain to be victorious there. Because we carried on a program of grass-roots education to inform the people of the true nature of Communism before they were finally conquered, the Communist conquest has been help up. Today they have turned in their frenzy to violence and arson and murder. At least for the time being a sanctuary, a base on the South American continent to supply the guerilla forces of Venezuela and Brazil, has been denied the international Communist movement.

The Principle of Anti-Communist Activity

The principle of our work is very simple. It is this—Communism is a system of monopolistic tyranny. Human nature loves to be free. Therefore, when people are given a choice and they know what the issues are, they inevitably choose freedom. Communists must deceive the people until their power is forcibly applied. Communism comes to power by deception; it remains in power by force. The great weapon against deception is knowledge. If we can reach the people of this Hemisphere and the people of Asia while they have a choice (this is important as with Communist conquest the choice is lost) with the truth concerning the nature of communism, they will spurn it. Whatever materialistic programs are carried out, however efficient the military program may be, however effective economic measures are, unless they are associated with an educational program to teach the specifics of communism, its ultimate goals, its fundamental beliefs, its techniques of deception, these materialistic programs by themselves will not be successful. We need a great ideological offensive until the true nature of communism is known in every last corner of this earth. Then and then only will the advance of communism be stopped.

The American Paradox

As we survey the world scene, particularly the scene in the United States, we are confronted with an extremely puzzling and paradoxical situation. On the international scene the situation is very grim. Everybody acknowledges that events in Southeastern Asia are ugly and portentous, that the situation in Africa is filled with danger, that Cuba is in the grip of a hideous Communist dictatorship and the refugees from that dictatorship are scattered everywhere throughout this Hemisphere. American treasure and American blood is being spent in an effort to halt the Communist advance. In addition to this, according to everything that can be known, a self-professed Marxist with Communist associations, affiliations, and activities assassinated the President of the United States. In spite of this, at this moment the American Communists are enjoying a climate of acceptance and respectability that they have not known for 25 years.

How do we account for this remarkable paradox? There are many illustrations of it. While on the one hand American boys are being drafted and sent to fight the Communists thousands of miles away, a self-professed leader of the Communist Party runs for supervisor of Los Angeles and gets more than 33,000 votes.

Violence and Non-Violence

After reading Communist propaganda, I can find one reason why a lot of people who previously were alarmed about communism within the United States are not so alarmed today. This reason is that the American Communist Party has apparently repudiated the violent pathway to power. When the Smith Act was written, it was very easy to prove that the American Communist Party advocated the overthrow of the United States government by force and violence. If you read the Communist literature today, that would not be easy to prove because in it they are now claiming that they propose to come to power without violence. Many people say, "If they have given up force and violence, they are now a legitimate political party. Therefore, we do not need to worry about them."

This is only half the picture. The Communists don't claim that they have repudiated force and violence. They claim they have repudiated it as the chosen method of coming to power within the United States.

This statement appears in Political Affairs, December, 1963, page 59, "When Marx used the phrase, 'Force is the midwife of revolution,' he was referring as Aptheker has pointed out to the use of force by the revolutionary government after the New Class has taken power, merely to clear the ground for the work of rebuilding." The Communists are saying that they are going to come to power without the use of force, but once they are in power force will be used to clear the ground for the work of rebuilding. In other words they propose to do precisely what Hitler did.

The Hitler Parallel

Hitler came to power within Germany by peaceful means. He was elected to power. It was only when he was in power that he tightened the strings of control and then he violently destroyed the constitution and proceeded to do what his theory dictated should be done, and he destroyed millions of Jews. I asked a newsman recently, "If I had come in 1935 and tried to tell the people that one day Adolph Hitler, sincerely believing his doctrines, would set out to murder 5 million Jews, what do you think would have happened to me?"

He said, "People would have said you were mad."

The Power of Ideas

We do not believe in the power of human ideas. If I am a heretic, and some people say that I am, I like to think that my heresy is this – I tend to overestimate the significance of human ideas. I believe this is much better than underestimating them. I believe that ideas sincerely held ultimately result in certain courses of action. I believe Hitler destroyed the Jews because his doctrines taught him that he should, not because of his paranoiac personality. I believe that Lee Harvey Oswald assassinated President John Fitzgerald Kennedy because of his Marxist doctrines, not because of the way his daddy treated him when he was a baby. I believe that we need to reaffirm human rationality; that we must reject the Marxist these that we are helpless victims of our economic environment and the experiences that environment provided during our first few years; and likewise we must reject the Freudian thesis that we are the victims of certain unconscious forces over which we have no control because of the fixation we developed towards our mother of because of some experience during our first few years of life.

Psychological Gobbledygook

This modern cult of psychological gobbledygook is an assault on human reason. It is an assault on human responsibility. Of course, everyone of us has certain impulses to do certain things. Every child has them, and maturity is the learning to control these impulses. I think there is more sense in an old French proverb than the entire modern cult of psychological gobbledygook. The old French proverb says, "It is amazing how easy it is to keep your temper when the other man is a lot bigger than you are."

The Communists believe their ideas. We ought to give them credit for that. Their ideas tell them the business class is a curse on mankind. Since their doctrines teach this, it is their duty, their moral duty, their righteous duty (should they be in a position to do so) to clear the ground of the business or the bourgeois class. I think we would be wise to face this truth. We can't wish it away; we can't ignore the reality of Communist doctrine. We must realize that if the Communist program for our conquest is successful, by every rational expectation, we will see the greatest program of planned extermination by scientific murder that history has ever known, because it's inherent within the doctrines and beliefs of communism.

While the Communists may have temporarily repudiated violence as the means of coming to power, they have certainly not repudiated its use after they are in power.

The Communist Strategy

The reason they have repudiated violence as the means of coming to power is because they don't need it. Their program is going successfully without it. Their present program is expressed by the formula, "Encirclement plus demoralization equals progressive surrender." This breaks down into a 3-pronged Satanic pitchfork on which to impale the United States.

The first prong is the aggressive Communist conquest of the countries of Asia, Africa, Central and South America. The second prong is the neutralization of Western Europe. The third prong is the demoralization and the isolation of the United States. When we see world affairs in this perspective, we see clearly that the Communists are making fearful gains in each of these areas.

The Anti-Communist Strategy

I suggest that this provides us with a rationale for anti-communist activity. We are no longer the helpless playthings of force and government. Communism is self limited to the avoidance of thermonuclear war. They don't want it. Their whole program is directed to its avoidance. If their program is to succeed, they must conquer without apparent external aggression in the countries of Asia, Africa, Central and South America, and they must demoralize and weaken the will so that surrender will take place within the United States.

In each country of Asia, Africa, Central and South America, therefore, they need an internal Communist Party so that the revolution can have the appearance of being a spontaneous national force. They recruit their Communist leadership in the universities. If we can reach the university students with the truth concerning communism before, not after, the Communists have recruited them, the young idealistic students will spurn and repudiate the Communist seduction and we will be able to dry up Communist recruitment at the roots. This is a program that is intelligent and practical, and all can participate in it.

Chile

The Communists claim they have an excellent chance of coming to power this September by election because they openly state they dominate the coalition which is given a 50-50 chance of being elected. A tremendous educational program is needed to inform the people of what's at stake. This can achieve a great deal. We have hundreds of books in Spanish on their way down there now in response to an appeal by the Chileans.

Program for the USA

We have discussed the situation on British Guiana and in Kerala. What about the United States? The United States is the most important country in this battle because history has chosen it to be the custodian of freedom. Were it not for the power of the United States, the Communists could conquer the rest of the world by telephone.

America had to come and save Australia from 75-million Japanese equipped with classical weapons starting 5,000 miles to the north. Today the Communists have one billion under their control. They have submarines with missiles with atomic warheads. They could start off our coasts. The moment the United States becomes unable or unwilling to defend my country, the Communists could pluck Australia like a ripe plum. The destiny of human freedom is determined by what takes place here, and we are endeavoring to wage a great educational program concerning the nature of Communism right here.

The Choice

The choice, as Dr. Morris pointed out, is not between thermonuclear war and surrender. The Communists don't want thermonuclear war any more than we do. The fact of the matter is they want it much less because they don't need it. Their present program is obviously successful and seeing that they expect to take over this country before long, and since they are very well informed concerning the magnificence of your homes, highways, schools and churches, they certainly don't want to destroy it in advance. They have ruled out thermonuclear war as the instrument of policy, and they are advancing because of our ignorance, because of our inability to understand their strategy, because of our unwillingness to come to grips with the nature of their offensive and what they are doing.

Basically this is a question of intelligence and character. This is a question of spirit and mind. Are we prepared to devote ourselves with equal intensity to an understanding of the techniques of Communism and its sacrificial defeat as we are to our business and health and home affairs.

The final answer will depend to a great degree upon what sort of people we are, what we believe, what we love, what we are ready to fight for, what we are ready to die for.

I would like to finish with this poem:

God give us men.

A time like this demands strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands.

Men whom the lust of office does not kill.

Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy.

Men who possess opinions and a will.

Men who have honor;

Men who will not lie;

Men who will stand before a demagogue and damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;

Tall men, sun crowned, who live above the fog in public duty and in private thinking.

WHY DID YOU DO IT?

By Marion Miller

Since the day it was revealed that I joined the Communist Party as a counterspy for our FBI I have been asked the same question by everyone I've met. "Why did you do it? How could you live like that letting the Communists take over your entire lives, pretending to believe in things that you actually despised, frightened every moment that the Communists would discover your true identity? You could have been killed, or you could simply have disappeared: What if you had said one wrong word, made one wrong move? And when they did find out about you, how were you ever able to stand the threats, the organized hate campaign, the abusive letters, the round-the-clock obscene telephone calls? How were you able to go on, never knowing when it would end? You didn't have to do it? Why? Why did you do it?"

Most people expect a very complicated answer. If so they are due for a rather big disappointment—because the answer is really so very simple.

I had three reasons—God-given reasons, the three very best reasons in the world—Paul Jr., Betsy Lou and little Bobby. Three lives for which I'm responsible, three minds for which there must be Freedom, three souls for which I pray. For they are my children and God's! And then there were your children, too. And if at this very moment the FBI were to ask me to do it again, I'd have to say, yes, I'd do it all over again!

Now, on the other hand, if I were to say to you that those five years were "easy", I'd be lying and if I told you that I functioned with the calmness of a Joan of Arc, I'd be psychopathic. Because the truth is: I'm a normal woman – no different from any other wife and mother. There were times I was so sick with fear my hands shook, I couldn't eat, nor could I sleep. And there were times when I simply fell on the bed crying, "Dear God, I'm not strong enough: I can't go on." Yes, there were moments like these. And it is one of those moments that I would like to tell you about now. Because, whether you realize it or not, everyone of you here tonight is in the same situation I was in, and you are faced with exactly the same choice.

Perhaps the most decisive moments in those entire five years as a counterspy occurred shortly after supper one evening. My husband and I were seated in the living room of our home when we suddenly heard footsteps; the front door opened and in marched one of my Communist superiors. This masculine woman looked at us coldly for a moment and then without another word she demanded, "Call Paul Jr. in here". It seemed like an eternity before I could speak; a dozen thoughts raced through my mind. "Does she know something?" "Where have I slipped?" "Why does she want my son?" With dragging feet I went to get him. Leading him by the hand I felt as if I were sacrificing my young. The moment he walked in, she blurted out, "Paul, does your mother make you go to Sunday School?" I remember that I just froze as I waited for the answer I knew was coming. "Sure," my son said, "I go to Temple every week." I can't tell you all the things I felt then — my heart felt like it was tied up in a thousand knots. My mouth was dry, and my mind was a blank, because there are no excuses for the crime of allowing a child to believe in God. The very idea of God is forbidden the son of a Communist parent.

She asked Paul Jr. several more questions and then as she turned and glared at me she said, "Comrade, the Party will not approve of your actions. You must educate your children in their Marxist responsibilities!"

After she left, I think I almost — well, it was a very bad time. My husband and I talked most of the night. I said I didn't think I could go on. That perhaps we should call the FBI and tell them we were quitting.

Because Judaism is the very antithesis of Communism as American Jews our faith in God has played a very important part in our family's life. And we could not deny that faith to our children. For us to live a lie was one thing — but what about our children? How many more convincing excuses could we even make for keeping Paul Jr. out of the Communist youth groups. We knew what they'd do to him there. We knew they'd erase, by fair means or foul, the last vestige of his faith. For totalitarianism can not tolerate two masters. God has to go! We couldn't take the chance of involving our children in something like that.

And yet what if we gave up? What if we just quit and sat idly by? Sure, we could relax, we would sleep regularly, we would live without fear again, we would return to a normal family life. It was tempting, let me tell you that. But how long would it last? What about the rest of my children's lives and their children's and yours. If I failed to do even my small part now, what kid of future might they look forward to; what kind of Country without God?

I couldn't quit. I had to go on! I couldn't give up. I had to keep trying, no matter what happened! So I stayed with the job until it was finished. And I will never regret it as long as I live.

If you remember, a few moments ago, I said you were faced with the same decision, and it's true. You are in the process of making a choice for yourselves and your children, just as I was. You can sit idly by and watch the step-by-step elimination of God if you so choose, or you can take part in doing something about it. You can relax in your soft, plushy chairs while the new immoral order takes root, or you can stand up and make your voices heard. The choice is yours.

I know it won't be easy. But let me ask you some of the questions I asked myself that night. If you have ever looked at your child as he lay sleeping and thought, "I would do anything for you".—What are you doing about this? If you would give your life for your children, why won't you give a little time for this? If you'd work till you dropped for them, why won't you work for this?

If you really care about their futures, have you written your congressman, have you made your friends aware of this situation? Are you supporting great organizations like the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade?

No one else can make our decisions for us, but I ask you to remember this: "All that is necessary for the success of evil is for good men to do nothing."

THE SPIRIT OF SOCRATES

By Dr. Robert Morris

I'd like to speak tonight in the spirit of Socrates. You know, many years ago Socrates was the man who distinguished himself by always asking "why."

God and Morality

Today, as we look at developments around the world on the national and international scene we see a greater need than ever before for God to come into our lives and our public institutions. Juvenile delinquency is rampant everywhere, crime statistics are soaring, and moral codes are declining. Yet in the face of all this, men, some of whom have dedicated their lives to a religious life, are working almost every day to eliminate God from our schools and our public institutions. Our concerned parents are understandably asking "Why?".

Communism

Today Communists are committing acts of terror all over the world: frightful, horrible acts of terror: they're extending their cruel dominion and their cruel bondage. Yet here in the United States, even though legislation has been on the books for 14 years, legislation which does not repress Communists, mind you, but simply asks that Communists register so we will know who they are and what they are doing so we will be able to keep track of their conspiratorial movements, we're told that this cannot be done. Understandably people are saying "Why."

The Reason

I would like to offer a solution and I submit that this solution, ladies and gentlemen, is one that you will find applicable in every area of international and national policy even down to the domestic scene. The reason is that the people who are planning our destiny today, the policy planners of the United States Government, notably those in the State Department, have already come to the conclusion that there is only one alternative to nuclear war, and that is that we must merge our way of life with the Soviet way of life under the framework of the United Nations.

Once you understand they are working for this goal every single thing that takes place will be understandable.

Disarmament

They are using for the most part the framework of something they call disarmament. As we analyze it, however, you will find that it is not disarmament at all; it's a device to achieve the goal that I just mentioned.

Back in September 1961, the United States State Department unfurled a plan. They called it State Department

Document 7277. It said that the United States would work to dissolve national armies in three stages and simultaneously transfer international peace keeping responsibility from nations to the international agencies, notably the United Nations. That's the program that we're working for today. Under Stage 3 of this plan we in the United States and other nations are to have only those weapons which we need for internal policing and only those forces which we will be supplying to the United Nations.

Analysis soon shows this is not disarmament. Disarmament takes place when nations destroy their arms and effectively resolve to arm no more. This is something far different. This is a transfer of military strength and sovereignty from nations to these international agencies headed in many cases by men who are committed to our destruction.

Stage 1

This program is being vigorously implemented with every passing day. Soon after this plan was announced the United States Disarmament Agency was created by act of Congress and important diplomats and large amounts of money were assigned to this agency so that it could begin implementing this grand design. In April of 1962 we put a treaty on the table at Geneva bringing this thing about. We suggested that Stage 1 is to be of three years duration and during this we are to effect a 30% disarmament, create a peace observation corps. Between Stage 1 and Stage 2 all nations will have to submit to the compulsory jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice without reservation. This destroys the Connally Reservation.

Stage 2

In Stage 2 the whole plan is to be completed, within six years. The Rostow Memorandum, and Rostow is the chief policy planner of the United States State Department, advises that we should not wait for a formal treaty. As we observe the world scene, we note that we are proceeding with this plan. We are actually dismantling our military might around the world in order to show our good faith to the Communists, to show them that we mean it when we say we are working for peace. Senator Goldwater has rightly pointed out we are now well in the first stage of disarmament. We are phasing out our manned bombers. We don't have one manned bomber on schedule; we have none in production. A year ago we had 1,100 B-47s in Europe, many B-52s and B-58s. We've dismantled them all. We're dismantling our missile bases in Turkey and Italy, our conventional bases in Italy, Morocco and Tunisia and England. Why? We're showing Khrushchev that we are sincere when we offer this plan. We are also offering all kinds of inducements for Khrushchev to come along. People wonder why it is when these people shoot down our dutiful sons flying in the Armed Services of the United States that we hardly raise a voice in protest. We mention it once and drop it. People wonder why it is that after our Congress appropriates billions of dollars to the State Department for our foreign aid program we take these funds and in many cases give it to outright Communists or to Communist dictators. Read the details of our cultural relations pact signed only in February.

Trade and Cultural Exchange

We have entered into a large scale program of cultural exchange with the Communists. If you look at it closely you will find that the area of exchange is where the Communists are behind trying to catch up with us. This is particularly so in the area of agriculture where the Communists are experiencing a great critical shortage and the prospect is that if we don't do something they will have a real crisis on their hands in the next five years. This is where the exchange is taking place. We're giving them our technical and scientific know-how, giving the chemical secrets of treating crops to the deadly Khrushchev to shore up his economy.

Domestic Appeasement

Even on the domestic scene we're making concessions to the Communists. We are a religious people, dedicated to such by our exciting Declaration of Independence which firmly launched us on a religious foundation. How I wish the eight judges on the Supreme Court who have been ruling otherwise would read the Declaration of Independence. Its Preamble says that we derive our authority from the laws of nature and nature's God and emphasises this by the use of capital letters. It goes on to say that all men are endowed by their Creator, with a capital C, with certain inalienable rights. Now we have to sit back and listen to the judges tell us that this nation has to be neutral between religion and atheism and anything like a simple nondenominational prayer or Bible reading is something proscribed and alien to our system.

Why are we doing it? I think all you have to do is read the UNESCO Pact of December, 1960—they called it a convention against discrimination in education. They say that education has to be the same all over the world. So what are we doing? We are actually secularizing our schools and secularizing our public institutions in order to make the prospect of merger more agreeable to Khrushchev. If you keep that in mind you will see why we're doing something that runs against our whole heritage and runs against our whole history.

A Religious People

We are a religious people. It was intended that there should be separation between Church and State, but it was never intended that there should be a wall of separation between God and State. Our whole heritage cries out against that.

Tolerating the Intolerable

As the Communists commit aggression after aggression we supinely sit back and wave a finger and say we will tolerate it no more and then tolerate it. All you have to do is look at a map of the world over the last five years and see what Communism was five years ago and see what it is today and you will realize that they are moving now at an accelerated pace toward the goal from which they never depart, the goal of victory for world Communism.

The New Order

Some believe these things are the only alternative to a nuclear war with weapons that can destroy the whole earth and all the people in it. I say that that's not the alternative. If you analyze what's happening it's not world disarmament at all that we're working for, but the creation of a new order. I am not alone in this interpretation and I'd like to read from an Associated Press report of a speech made by Adlai Stevenson in Berkeley, California on April 4. "Adlai Stevenson, United States Ambassador to the United Nations, has warned Americans that they must forget nationalism and place world unity first or the world is lost. He said Americans must grasp, stronger than ever before, the audacious dream of world unity and that if the United States does not press on in support of world policing and world law, it is lost. "Americans," Stevenson said, "still are divided on nationalism versus world government despite the fact that the rationale of separate, disparate sovereignty has all but vanished." Adlai spells it out all so clearly.

On the same program U Thant, the Secretary General of the United Nations, said that nationalism has caused setbacks in the United Nations struggle for world peace through world government. However, he added, the UN is progressing toward the theoretical ultimate aim of world legislation if not world government.

They say it more eloquently than I. They make clear what we're working for. They aim to substitute the peace-keeping forces of the United Nations, headed as these forces are by the United Secretary General in Charge of Security Council and Political Affairs, a man who is a Soviet Commissar, for the armed might of the United States of America.

The Present Danger

So determined are these people that many of the things that we have accepted as part of our American institution are now being threatened. There is litigation in Los Angeles that would have the Pledge of Allegiance declared unconstitutional because it contains the phrase "under God". The National Chaplains Association with 30,000 members met in Chicago last week and they passed a resolution dedicating all their resources to the fight against several chapters of the American Civil Liberties Union which have announced they are going to bring action against the Department of Defense to prevent it paying salaries to chaplains. Their interpretation of the First Amendment would now take away from us an institution, the chaplaincy, which has given great and wonderful benefits to people all over the world. This is the reality in which we're all living.

We are living in a dangerous age. We know that Khrushchev and other evil men have the power to destroy us and yet I say that there is only one cause in the world today that is capable of protecting the United States and in fact the whole world and that is the military strength of the United States of America. We cannot allow the forces of U Thant to be substituted for this force.

Our Heritage

With the military strength of the United States goes a great spiritual strength' the strength of our Constitution; the strength of our people; the strength of our industries; and the strength of our farms. These are the things that conform to the dictates of man's nature. We have here in the United States and in the American heritage something that men have thirsted for from the beginning of time. This heritage contains three elements. The first is the religious and spiritual fabric of our way of life; the second is the free enterprise system which has made our nation great; and the third is the Constitution with its exciting Bill of Rights and the common law heritage that goes back to the time of the Magna Carta in 1215.

We should dedicate ourselves to the maintenance of this heritage. It expresses best the needs of man's nature as created by God. We must work to preserve it.

The Free Enterprise System

Consider the free enterprise system. This today is not only feeding and satisfying the material needs of virtually everybody in the United States, but we are extending our largesse all over the world. No other system has been as effective as this system. No other force has waged war on poverty such as the free enterprise system and yet under the framework of the planners a sterile socialism is to be substituted for it. This is anathema.

The United Nations

Suppose we surrender sovereignty to the United Nations. Who are the men occupying the chairs at the Council Table of the World? At the head of the table is Nikita Khrushchev with his own three votes and his nine satellites. If U Thant has his way, Mao Tse-tung and his cohorts will be there. Then there would be Nasser, Nkruma, Sukarno representing the quasi Communists and so-called neutralists. Adlai Stevenson will be there representing the United States. What's going to happen to our wonderful heritage with these components? There are now 113 member nations of the UN. They plan 126. There aren't a half-dozen nations that are committed to the concept of free enterprise. We alone have the Bill of Rights and only those nations that have come out of the British Commonwealth know anything such as the common law tradition. It would mean the eclipse of our magnificent heritage.

This must not happen. I believe that 1964 is indeed the crossroads. I think that Adlai Stevenson has stated the issue squarely. We have to choose between nationalism and world government and I think that nationalism in the sense that I use it, is a magnificent American heritage with out spiritual and religious essence, with our free enterprise system, our common law heritage and Constitution and the Bill of Rights. Let's take these things and extend them with a spirit of charity to men all over the world. These are the things that most conform to the nature vested in man by a wise and all-knowing God. This is the cause to which I ask that you dedicate yourselves tonight.

COMMUNIST DOCTRINE DISPROVED

There are many ways to disprove Communist doctrines. The financial support of the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade reveals how ridiculous one of the basic doctrines of Communism is.

From this doctrine the Communists reach the conclusion that the main financial support of the anti-communist movement is business and industry. If their doctrine were true this would be so. This doctrine states that there exists in capitalist society a truceless conflict between the business class and the working class. Communists represent the working class, therefore, the anti-communists represent the business class. Therefore, the anti-communists are supported by donations from corporations, business firms and businessmen.

This conclusion is so far from the facts that is it funny. If the Christian Anti-Communism Crusade had to depend on the support of business it would close down tomorrow. This is illustrated clearly by the following true story. Many American business firms have investments in Brazil. These investments were threatened by the rise of Communism in that country. It would seem indisputable that business firms would be interested in legitimate activity to halt the advance of Communism.

We secured a list of 500 American firms with investments in Brazil and sent them the following letter:

"Gentlemen:

As you know, Brazil is the great prize in South America for which the Communists are energetically and ceaselessly working. Their progress is shown by the infiltration, rampant nationalism, political instability, and industrial unrest in which they are deeply involved.

They are aided by the widespread misunderstanding of the nature, methods, and objective of Marxism and Communism. An educational program to teach the truth concerning Communism is an essential element in an effective anti-Communist program.

The book "YOU CAN TRUST THE COMMUNISTS to be Communists" has been described by the United States Information Agency as an extremely clear explanation of the Communist threat. It is available in Portuguese. I am forwarding a copy both in English and Portuguese, and I hope you will read it and judge its effectiveness.

We wish to distribute this as widely as possible and ask your cooperation for your economic self-interest and the preservation of human freedom.

You may help in various ways. These include: 1) Distribute this book to your employees; 2) Subsidize its distribution to university students and other groups.

I enclose a copy of an illustrated pamphlet in Spanish entitled 'If Communism Comes to Mexico'. We are planning its production in Portuguese with the title 'If Communism Comes to Brazil' for grass-roots distribution.

We would appreciate any help your company can give. Correspondence should be addressed as

Dr. Fred Schwarz
Christian Anti-Communism Crusade
124 East First Street
Long Beach, California

Mr. J. M. Scheibe
Caixa Postal 7

Donations in the U.S.A. are tax deductible.
May I hear from you promptly.

Yours very sincerely,
Fred Schwarz
President"

In response to this appeal we did not receive one dollar. The investment in literature, stationery, printing and postage was a complete loss to the Crusade. This will shock many of our friends while our opponents will simply refuse to believe it. Yet it is true.

The Individual

The individual is all important in the struggle for freedom. We have been able to carry on because of the sacrificial giving of scores of thousands of individual American citizens who believe that Communism threatens their heritage. A few individuals have been able to give substantially. Most have given small amounts. All gifts are most welcome, and are manifestations of the true wealth of America, the generosity and compassion of its God-fearing citizens.

You are the most important person in this battle. Without you the chain will be broken, the cause will be lost. We cherish your fellowship in service, sacrifice and suffering. From such elements victory is created.

Our Lord stressed the value of each individual. In our present automated, mechanized society, the warm and wonderful truth that each individual is worth more than the entire material world cannot be stressed too often. Remember the very hairs of your head are all numbered. God need you and the cause of human freedom needs you.
